

Some Brightspace FAQs

How do I edit things in Brightspace?

- For most any content you add to Brightspace, you can find a drop-down menu when you hover your cursor immediately to the right of the content title. Click that, then select Edit HTML. Make your changes, then click Save and Close.

DP2: Where does sexism come from? ▾

The readings in this section address various theories about where sexism comes from: Do we think it is determined by our basic biology, to the biological differences between men and women? Does it come from social gatherers? Is sexism inextricably tied to economic systems?

For this discussion project, you are to post what you've personally/individually been taught with regard to the readings. Respond to at least two of the following, and remember that discussion projects must be a minimum of 100 words.

1. What does your religion teach with regard to gender relations?
2. What have you learned about biological differences in terms of gender?
3. What did you learn in school? Did you get the basic health ed spiel about how boys are different from girls? Do you have more complex understandings of sex and gender?

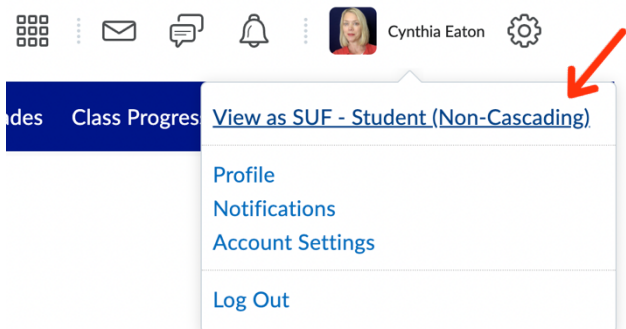

Some of these options pages offer too many options! How do I know which ones to use?

- In any screen in Brightspace, the only options that you must set are identified with a black asterisk. All other settings are optional. Take your time and read through the options and decide what you do and do not want.

How do I see what my class website looks like from the student perspective?

- For a quick view of how your class website looks to students, at the top right of your screen in the minibar (above the blue navbar), click your name and select View as SUF – Student.

You'll see an orange icon with two diagonal arrows so you know you're in student view. You can then click throughout your course and see how it appears to your students.

To exit student view, click the orange icon with the two diagonal arrows and click the large X below "Viewing as SUF – Student (Non-Cascading)."

Your name and profile picture (if you've uploaded one) will again appear at the top right of the class so you know you're back in faculty view.

How do I know if students are even logging in to my class website?

- Brightspace has a tool called Class Progress which you can see in your blue navbar at the top of your class website. Click that, and you'll see your students' progress.
